Signs - Aqueous Flare [Time Frame: 1 Day after Surgery]Measured as the percentage of patient's eyes subjectively evaluated to have Aqueous Flare at each of the following gradings: 0 - None: No visible flare when compared to the normal eye. 1 - Mild: Flare visible against dark papillary background but not visible against iris background. 2 - Moderate: Flare is visible with the slit-lamp beam aimed onto the iris surface as well as teh dark papillary background. 3 - Severe: Very dense flare. May also present as a hazy appearance of anterior segment structures when viewed with low power magnification of the slit-lamp. Device: DisCoVisc Use of DisCoVisc Ophthalmic Viscosurgical Device (4% sodium chondroitin sulfate, 1.65% sodium hyaluronate) during cataract surgery. Inclusion Criteria: operable cataracts in at least one eye Exclusion Criteria: Endothelial Cell Count (ECC) ≤ 1500 cells/mm² Intraocular Pressure (IOP) > 21 mm Hg previous ocular inflammation systemic or ocular conditions affecting corneal endothelium A negative number indicates a decrease in corneal thickness. This was assessed at both the 1 week and 1 month visit. Surgeon Surgey - Anterior Dome Maintenance During Intraocular Lens (IOL) Insertion [Time Frame: Time of Surgery]Surgeon reporting of Anterior Chamber Dome Maintenance of a subject's eye during intraocular lens (IOL) insertion. Corneal endothelial cells are measured by counting the number of cells on an image taken by specular microscope. Evaluated on a subjective scale and reported as percent by response. Device: DuoVisc Use of DuoVisc viscoelastic system consisting of Viscoat (3% sodium hyaluronate, 4% chondroitin sulfate)and Provisc(1% sodium hyaluronate) during cataract surgery. Intraocular Pressure (IOP) [Time Frame: 1 day after surgery]Measure of intraocular pressure of a patient's eye via tonometry one day after surgery. AMVISCÁ PLUS VISCOELASTIC - EASY REMOVALIntroducing our extensive range of viscoelastic products, designed to you the right choice to respond effectively to the complex needs of your patients. Viscoelastic Brochure Arm Intervention/Treatment Active Comparator: DisCoVisc Use of DisCoVisc Ophthalmic Viscosurgical Device during cataract surgery. [Time Frame: 1 week and month after surgery]Percent Gain in Corneal Thickness between the assessment performed before surgery to that performed after surgery. Device: Amvisc Plus Use of Amvisc Plus ophthalmic viscosurgical device (1.6% Sodium Hyaluronate) during cataract surgery. Device: Healon5 Use of Healon5 ophthalmic viscosurgical device (2.3% Sodium Hyaluronate) during cataract surgery. Active Comparator: Amvisc Plus Use of Amvisc Plus ophthalmic viscosurgical device during cataract surgery. Surgeon Surgey - Anterior Dome Maintenance During Phacoemulsification [Time Frame: Time of Surgery]Surgeon reporting of Anterior Chamber Dome Maintenance of a subject's eye during phacoemulsification. Active Comparator: DuoVisc Use of DuoVisc Viscoelastic System (Viscoat, Provisc) during cataract surgery. Active Comparator: Healon5 Use of Healon5 ophthalmic viscosurgical device (OVD) during cataract surgery. Corneal thickness is measured in micrometers and is evaluated by Pachymetry. Secondary Outcome Measures : Percent Gain in Corneal Thickness. The following scale is used, from worst to best: Flat, Shallow, Working Space Adequate, Full Chamber Maintenance. Aqueous Signs - Aqueous Cells [Time Frame: 1 day after surgery]Measured as the percentage of patient's eyes subjectively evaluated to have Aqueous Cells at each of the following gradings: 0 - None, 1 - 1 to 5 cells, 2 - 6 to 15 cells, 3 - 16 - 30 cells, 4 - >30 cells. Primary Outcome Measures : Corneal Endothelial Cell Loss [Time Frame: 1 month after surgery]Percentage of corneal endothelial cells lost 1 month after surgery as compared to the number of corneal endothelial cells measured before surgery. Measured in mmHg. Normal intraocular pressure is between 10 mmHg and 20 mmHg. ecananetriam emod rebmahc roiretna - yevrus
